

John Smith
December 9, 2010
Economics Essay

This is My Clever Title

Start of essay.

Basic Quoting

Static Quote (WORST)

It's no longer safe to read just any website. "U.S. agencies have warned some employees that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs" (Grinberg).

Conversational Quote

According to Grinberg, "It's no longer safe to read just any website. U.S. agencies have warned some employees that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs."

According to Grinberg, "It's no longer safe to read just any website. U.S. agencies have warned some employees that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs" ("I Hate WikiLeaks!").

According to some sources, "It's no longer safe to read just any website. U.S. agencies have warned some employees that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs" (Grinberg).

Embedded Quote (BEST)

Current government employees are being told "that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs" (Grinberg).

Grinberg is reporting that current government employees are being told "that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs."

Grinberg is reporting that current government employees are being told "that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs" ("I Hate WikiLeaks!").

Current government employees are being told "that reading the classified State Department documents released by WikiLeaks puts them at risk of losing their jobs" even if they do so unintentionally (Grinberg).

It has been discovered that “[e]-mails went out last week to them at several schools...” (Grinberg).

It has been discovered that “[e]-mails went out last week to [students] at several schools...” (Grinberg).

It has been discovered that “[e]-mails went out... at several schools...” (Grinberg).

Other Quoting

Quoting someone who is Quoted in Your Source

According to Gregory McNeal, a law professor at Pepperdine University, reading leaked documents could be an “indicator that, when taken together with others, creates a broader pattern that might suggest you're not a person to be hired” (Grinberg).

Reading leaked documents could be an “indicator that, when taken together with others, creates a broader pattern that might suggest you're not a person to be hired” (qutd. in Grinberg).

Citing without an Author

Reading leaked documents could be an “indicator that, when taken together with others, creates a broader pattern that might suggest you're not a person to be hired” (“WikiLeaks Will Get Us All Killed”).

Citing without a Work with Page Numbers

Reading leaked documents could be an “indicator that, when taken together with others, creates a broader pattern that might suggest you're not a person to be hired” (Grinberg 25).

Citing Author with Multiple Sources in Your Works Cited

According to Gregory McNeal, a law professor at Pepperdine University, reading leaked documents could be an “indicator that, when taken together with others, creates a broader pattern that might suggest you're not a person to be hired” (Grinberg, “I Hate Wikileaks!”).

Reading leaked documents could be an “indicator that, when taken together with others, creates a broader pattern that might suggest you're not a person to be hired” (qutd. In Grinberg, “I Hate Wikileaks!”).

Quote Taking More than THREE LINES OF YOUR TEXT

The government has a sticky situation on its hands. Many future employees could be putting their jobs at risk.

They may very well take into account your opinion, as a job candidate, whether or not you think WikiLeaks is a good thing or bad thing for the country. It's a small issue, but one to approach with caution if I were a student seeking a job in the national security field. (Grinberg, "I Hate WikiLeaks!")

Whether or not it's an issue for you, it is something to be aware of. (Indent this line if starting a new paragraph)

EXAMPLE #2

E-mails went out last week to students at several schools, including Boston University's School of Law, Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service and Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs, cautioning students against commenting on or posting links to the documents on social media sites such as Facebook or Twitter. (Grinberg, "I Hate WikiLeaks!")

Citing an E-reader:

<http://www.noodletools.com/helpdesk/kb/index.php?action=article&id=206&relid=2>

Citing an E-reader: http://www.riosalado.edu/library/owl/Documents/MLA-Citation Elec BookReaders.pdf

Works Cited

Grinberg, Emanuella. "I Hate Wikileaks!" CNN Justice. Cable News Network. Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., 9 Dec. 2010. Web. 9 Dec. 2010.
<<http://www.cnn.com/2010/CRIME/12/08/wikileaks.students/index.html?hpt=T1>>.

Grinberg, Emanuella. "Will reading WikiLeaks cost students jobs with the federal government?" CNN Justice. Cable News Network. Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., 9 Dec. 2010. Web. 9 Dec. 2010.
<<http://www.cnn.com/2010/CRIME/12/08/wikileaks.students/index.html?hpt=T1>>.

"WikiLeaks Will Get Us All Killed." Free Speech Online. N.p., 2010. Web. 9 Dec. 2010.
<<http://freespeechonline.com/wikileaks-will-kill-us-all>>.